

The FCC should not attempt to overturn New Jersey's Do not call law. My family and I benefit from the privacy that the more restrictive terms of that law call for. We have gone from receiving several unwanted calls daily to practically none.

I would urge the FCC to endorse and adopt the states more stringent provisions. In particular I object the Federal rule's exemption that allows businesses that have done business with us in the last 18 months to make telemarketing calls. It should be my choice not to continue the relationship.

Just because
